

SAFETY AND HEALTH COMMITTEE TRAINING

The safety and health committee rules 2004 section 4.

(1) The occupier of every workplace to which these Rules apply shall establish a Safety and Health Committee in the manner provided in these Rules.

(2) A safety and Health Committees shall consist of safety representatives from the management and the workers in the following proportions-

(a) in the case of workplaces which regularly employ between twenty and one hundred employees, not less than three safety representatives each from the management and from the workers;

(b) in the case of workplaces which regularly employ between one hundred and one thousand employees, not less than five safety representatives each from the management and the workers; and

(c) in the case of workplaces which employ one thousand or more employees, not less than seven safety representatives each from the management and the workers.

(3) The occupier shall, appoint a competent person, being a member of the management staff, to be responsible for safety, health and welfare in the workplace.

(4) The person appointed under paragraph (3) shall be the Secretary to the Committee.

The safety and health committee rules 2004 section 12.

(1) Every member of the Committee shall undertake a prescribed basic training course in occupational health and safety within a period of six months from the date of appointment or election as the case may be, and thereafter further training from time to time.

(2) The training course referred to in subparagraph (1) shall be in such form and in such institutions as may be approved by the director.

Don't wait for the government officers to enforce the non-compliance with the law. Please book for the safety and health committee training now. Our prices are in the prices tab. You can also get in touch for any enquiry.